

Uki Dele-Ogbeide

Please Don't take Klove signal

Please, please, please, do not take Klove away. It has blessed me and so many people in extraordinary ways. It was to me for 2 years of my life a source of hope. Being in hopeless circumstances, where there is no way known to man to get out of. Klove gave me hope. Crying nights, Klove was a source of joy in the morning. it is to some a source of connection with good, positive message. I don't want to think of where I would be if Klove was not on air during that period of my life. I would have ran my car off the freeway or done something to that effect. But thanks to Klove though my circumstances and troubles are not all gone, but I know the purpose for my life, and have expectant hope beyond hope, and am witnessing people having renewed hope as well. Please don't take Klove station. It is very important.

Klove is the sometimes the only source of encouragement I get. I am a Student and I am surrounded by lots of people who don't understand the Love of God. In showing them and pouring myself out, it gets discouraging. But when I enter my car and turn on Klove I am encouraged because it brings me back to the realization that there are people who know Gods love and are sharing it to the whole world, to Africans, Australians, every where.

If Klove were to be displaced from the broadcaster, it will greatly affect my community. I know that police officers listen to Klove a lot, some while taking suspects in. It is very important that Klove be on this translator, for the increase safety of community even if it is one suspect, you never know what impact that would have on his/her life let alone our community.

I had a friend visit and she was amazed that we have a christian station that has no commercial and is clear, no statics or two stations conflicting on the same signal. I told her about the online radio service.

The service provided by Klove is in the public interest as the encouraging message it sends results in listeners who are spurred on to do good for others, to be more patient even on the road, with customers, and it affects family values as it plays music that both adults, teenagers and children can all relate to.